STAN'S SOAPBOX

Hi Heroes!
I'm heartbroken!

After all these years, I finally took the plunge and decided to write a monthly comic book again, and I never had a better time! Collaborating with that peerless penciler Pandemonium Paul Ryan and guided by the exhilarating editorial skills of Jolly Joey Cavalieri, we managed to get RAVAGE 2089 off to a sensational start.

It was truly a blast being back in the swim again, worrying about the usual demonic dead nes, frantically dreaming up new pots and new characters, and having urgent long-distance conferences with Paul and Joey.

And then it happened!

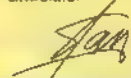

Suddenly, all of our theatrical projects have started going at once! The X-MEN cartoon series became Saturday morning's biggest hit and producers all over Hollywood are developing SPIDER-MAN, THE BLACK PANTHER X-MEN (the version), DR. STRANGE, LUKE CAGE, GHOST RIDER, DAREDEVIL, and many more of our top characters!

While we're all overjoyed about that exciting news, it means that there's enough movie and TV work to keep me busy a hundred hours a day—which also means it's impossible for me to devote the time necessary to give an important strip like RAVAGE the attention it deserves.

So, most regretfully, I must announce that RAVAGE #7, "The Vengeance of Dragonkai," will be the last issue I write. But, I promise you this: No matter how busy I may be, I'll be following Rav's adventures as enthusiastically as a the rest of our hundreds of thousands of readers. I mean, hey, I wanna find out what happens to ol' "Power Hands" just as much as you do.

But even through the tears there's a ways this one battle cry to comfort us—

Excelsior!

Stan Lee

Video may have killed the radio star, but it seems to have created a whole new animal — the comic book star! These days, more comics people are turning up on TV than Ross Perot during an election year.

Marvel's biggest multi-media star these days is mutant maestro Bob Harras, who has been putting in more TV time than Michael Jackson trying to pump up his album sales! Bob's media blitz started off in February with the showbiz double whammy of Entertainment Tonight/Entertainment Weekly. (They don't call Bob "Mr. Entertainment" for nothing! He pays them.) Bob now says that wherever he goes, people recognize him from his Entertainment Weekly concluded their Australian walkabout and returned to the States, whereupon Bob flew out to the coast for a meeting in Hollywood to discuss the live-action X-Men movie! That little gab-fest was arranged by Joe Calamari, the only man at Marvel with more Tinseltown connections than Wonder Man!

While in La-La Land, Bob also met with the writers of the X-Men animated series. Bob noted that Fox is very happy with the ratings of the X-Men cartoon — it's the #1 show on Saturday mornings! Bob added that the TV show is bringing in lots of new X-Maniacs to the comic. "Kids all across the land are watching X-Men!"

As if all that wasn't enough, the Harrasment continued as Bob escaped to New York to tape an X-Men promo video to be shown at all the big cons this summer. Also appearing in the video were mutant-like writer Scott Lobdell, and mutant monger Tom DeFalco. Summing up his thoughts on the X-Men, Bob gushed, "They're my family!"

A recent addition to the Marvel family is Michael Bair, whose sizzling rendition of HELLSTORM is burning up the comic racks. Mike recently made his TV debut on the ratings scorcher, You Bet Your Life, hosted by Bill Cosby. Mike got the former Dr. Huxtable to sign a rare copy of his I, Spy #1 comic, and the Cos admitted to having a few copies of that book himself. (Fortunately for Mike, the show wasn't called "You Bet Your Soul!")

One guy who always puts his heart and soul (and spleen) into his work is Rob Tokar's assistant editor Dan Cuddy, whose band, Hypnooovewheel, taped a new music video during the Blizzard of '93! The video was for "Piece of Mind," the hot new single off Hypnooovewheel's fifth album, "Altered States." The video features a couple of Marveloids,inker Don Hudson and associate editor Sarra Mossoff, in a bizarre aerobics ceremony. Dan describes the clip as "Richard Simmons meets the Maharishi Maha Yogi!"

Bass-player Dan said this mega-rock'n' video should be playing on better music video channels everywhere. Strangely, Bob Harras does not appear in the video...

In March, Bob jetted with John Romita Sr. to Sydney, Australia, for the hottest show Down Under since Supper the Bush Kangaroo hopped off the airwaves. Bob and John were guests at Australia's biggest comic convention on, but the two also put in an appearance on Melbourne's biggest morning show Good Morning Australia and Australian version of Inside Edition, where, as Bob put it, "I jabbered about the 30th anniversary of the X-Men."
